Location

Filming in Albuquerque

We will be filming in locations like these in Albuquerque that have an 'every town' look, yet with a bit of a southwestern flair.

"The Mercy List" ~ Location

The Sandia Mountains – “sandia” means watermelon in Spanish; the mountains lit up bright pink at sunset.

The World Famous
Albuquerque Balloon Fiesta

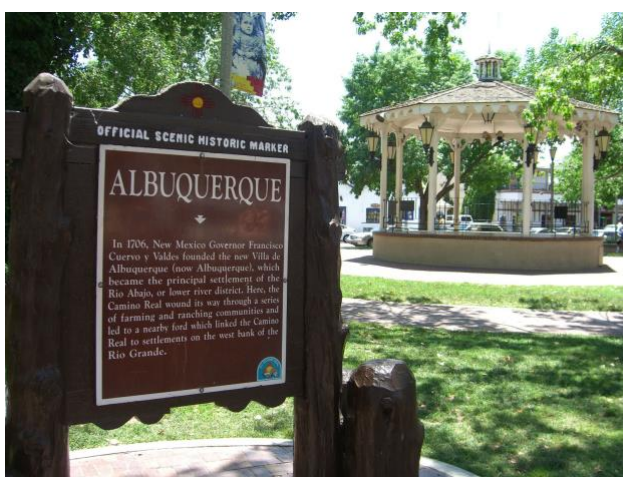

"The Mercy List" ~ Location

Typical house that Tanner would live in.

And the type of neighborhood in which he lurks at night.

Tanner's favorite peeping haunts. ("Why do women leave their blinds open?")

New Mexico has the most magnificent sunsets. Because screenwriter-director Jan was born and raised in Albuquerque she never realized until she moved out of New Mexico that these types of sunsets are not everyday events in other cities. Very dramatic for filmmaking!

Cast & crew will enjoy New Mexican meals. NOT the same as Mexican food! Better.

Tacos & tamales

Red chile posole & cornbread.

Sopapillas. Invented in ABQ!

Green chile stew

Chile relleno

Enchiladas
