Cinematography

Here are other movies with a similar type of 'look' that I want for my film. "The Mercy List" has a lot of nighttime scenes. I love the look of the night scenes in "Winter's Bone" and "The Dead Girl." They are realistically dark. It's nighttime, it's dark! You be shouldn't be able to see everything clearly.

I like this clean, bright look for the drug store where Tanner works. It's the one place he feels safe from his darker habits, when he's at work he knows he can't peep – his mind is happily on his job.
